CHAIRMAN'S MESSAGE

Welcome to the new Chinese lunar year, the Year of the Ox, which started on 26 January 2009.

And what a way to start 2009 with very uncertain times caused by the financial meltdown in USA fuelling a worldwide recession, the worst since the Great Depression in the 1930's. There are great challenges ahead for both the new NZ Prime Minister, John Key, and the first black President of USA, Barack Obama.

However, on the local front NZCA Auckland Branch Executive Committee can be very proud of their achievements over the past 12 months in providing interesting activities for its members and the Auckland Chinese Community generally, with the highlights as follows:-

- Hosting the largest Easter Tournament ever held with nearly a 1,000 participants and a like number of supporters with most events held at the large Waitakere Trusts Stadium as a fabulous focal point. Congratulations to Edmond Yee and his team for a tremendous organising effort.
- Arranging the "Dragon" sculpture gift to the NZ Beijing Olympic Team on behalf of the NZ Chinese community. A special thanks to the major donors and the fundraising supporters. The original is now located permanently in the foyer of the Chinese Olympic building in central Beijing and the replica is in the entrance foyer of the Auckland City Library for the next two years.
- Organising two memorable outings to the big Buddha at Warkworth in April 08 and the Waitomo trip in October 08 which were enjoyed immensely by a full busload of NZCA members.
- Hosting the 3rd NZCA Leadership & Development Conference at Willow Park Convention Centre, Eastern Beach on 1 – 6 February 09 with 44 "Future DragonNZ" from throughout NZ. This event showed the benefit to NZCA of this initiative because the Organising Committee was headed by six participants from the previous two events held in 2007 & 2008.

Another activity started in November 2008 was the Seniors' Lifestyle Group with the objective of providing stimulating and active activities for those NZCA members not in full-time employment. We currently have 10 to 20 regular attendees but welcome any new participants.

The Annual General Meeting is being held on 26 April 2009 and we look forward to the injection of new younger Committee members to get the Next Generation activities up and running. Please note that nominations for the Branch Officers & Executive Committee members need to be advised to myself or the Secretary by 19 April 2009 at the latest.

Registrations are now open for the "Rising Dragon, Soaring Bananas" International Conference being held at the University of Auckland Business School on 18 – 19 July 2009 in conjunction with the International Society for the Study of Chinese Overseas (ISSCO). Please refer to the website www.goingbananas.org.nz for further details.

Please refer to our website www.nzchinese-akld.org.nz for the latest and constantly updated information on NZCA Auckland activities, and provide your email address(if you have one) to John & Connie, so that they can send you important information as soon as it is received.

WHAT'S BEEN GOING ON?

NZCA LEADERSHIP AND DEVELOPMENT CONFERENCE (LDC) 2009

Introduction

Following seven months of planning and preparation the NZCA LDC was successfully hosted at Willow Park, Eastern Beach in the first week of February 2009. The tightly packed six day event brought together forty four young NZ Chinese - the next generation of leaders in the New Zealand Chinese community. The sun shone throughout the week as the participants became acquainted with themselves and became familiar with the early morning wake ups – as each day brought new cultural insights and challenges.

An array of activities

By mid Sunday afternoon the registration was complete and the participants were eager to know who they were sharing their dorms with and whether they were local Aucklanders or further afield like Palmerston North or Dunedin. The icebreakers in the stadium got everyone opening up on their personalities and attributes and this followed on with Peter Low's Lion dance troupe with the Wu Shu artists showing their flexibility and skill. The first nights dinner got the conference attendees into the discipline of eating fast ...going for seconds, finishing dessert and clearing their dishes – to get ready for the evening sessions. The Sunday evening session was appropriately opened up by Peter Chin – Mayor of Dunedin – inspiring all to “do it your way” and face the challenges that appear as we progress our careers.

NZCA LDC Future DragonZ participants and Organisers at Willow Park - Feb 2009 (below)

A careers consultant (Allison Fisher) took the attendees through their personality traits from introvert to extrovert – each participant valued their individuality and how they combined a variety of traits to become comfortable with who they are. Later on the group got their first taste of Chinese folk dancing and how to keep the fans held high without watching their feet.

Throughout the week the attendees benefited from the business insights of Jilnaught Wong (University of Auckland), Chris Chong (Red Cactus) and Andrew Wong (Ascot Mercy Hospital) and appreciated the successes and ambitions that these people articulated. The benefits of forward planning with the scheduled speakers ensured there was a cross section of talented and inspiring topics – from animators with Weta productions to the assimilation of Chinese into western cultures.

The fellowship

One of the achievements of the conference, as with previous LDC forums – is the friendships and camaraderie that is forged between all participants. The bonding and genuine fun & humor as the various teams concentrate on preparing and delivering their projects – was witnessed on the final night when they all performed their folk dances. The laughter and applause for each group came from their parents and friends – but also across their peer groups. The black Future DragonNZ t-shirts unified this group of young aspirational NZ Chinese – just as their colourful folk dance costumes brought out the cultural identity.

The benefits of the Conference

By the end of the week the leadership skills and cultural awakenings were embedded in each of the 44 participants. The legacy of the conference is that these young people will go forward into the workforce and community not just as young adults but young NZ Chinese leaders – ready to take on whatever comes their way in a NZ society.

Footnote: A big thanks to Justin Yang & Kai Luey and the organizing committee for doing the hard yards – and making the 2009 LDC a great success.

NZCA Auckland Goldrush Trip

21-22 February 2009

A group of 20 people gathered at Auckland Airport at 6:30a.m. on Saturday 21st. to travel to Dunedin to see the recently completed "Chinese Gardens", which was constructed on the site of a carpark site, practically in the heart of the city. We were met at the hotel apartments by Peter & Janice Sew Hoy, who were to be our hosts for the Dunedin City part of our brief tour , which was made so much more enjoyable, with all the local knowledge that gave us a better insight into all the places we visited in the short time we were there. First of all, we were taken to the Otago Museum to see an exhibition called "The Emperor's Dragons ", which was a collection of precious treasures showcasing the importance of the symbol of the dragon in Chinese culture & civilization. All of these exquisite treasures were crafted for Emperors through the different dynasties of their ancient history , and consisted of pottery , cooking utensils, vases, robes, and mirror like ornaments, all embellished with the "dragon theme" . We were told that one could tell that the dragons depicted were created for Emperors by the number of claws the dragon had.....most of which had five , which showed that the articles were created for the top level of the rulers of the day. This wonderful exhibition was made available by the Shanghai Museum, exclusively to the Otago Museum , as Dunedin City is a "Sister City" of Shanghai. Peter & Janice , ably assisted by our own Cecil Wong, who had arrived in the city a few days earlier, and was "schooled " up by niece Janice & nephew-in-law Peter, on the most interesting aspects of this comprehensive exhibition of ancient artifacts, which made the tour so much more interesting. Next port of call for the group was the "Chinese Gardens" which was within walking distance of the Otago Museum, and free entrance to this magnificent group of buildings, lake & gardens was facilitated by Peter, who is a trustee of the "Chinese Garden", and Janice & he, were our guides at this truly authentic cluster of buildings, lake & gardens, which were mainly designed in Shanghai, built & fabricated on a site identical in size & shape to that of Dunedin. The buildings, were built then dismantled, then shipped to New Zealand in 100 containers, where they were reconstructed by artisans & supervisors from Shanghai. The * Dunedin Chinese Garden is the only authentic, as well as the first in the Southern Hemisphere, and well worth the trip to the "Deep South" to view this magnificent edifice.

That evening, we had a scrumptious dinner at the "Golden Harvest" restaurant with members of the Otago Chinese Community, after which we paid a short visit to the local Casino.....not to gamble, but to see how an old, old, hotel, was restored and converted to what is known down there as a "boutique casino" . This restoration would leave our Civic Theatre in second place, as far as the attention to detail is concerned! After an hour or so socialising and drinking water, we were delivered back to our "digs" by the casino's courtesy van to rest up in preparation for an early morning bus trip to Lawrence, where we met up with James & Eva Ng, who gave us a brief history of the area.....Chinese gold diggers had worked in this area a hundred or so years ago, and the ultimate plan is to re- create the village that was established on the site, all those years ago. After viewing slides and listening to Jim's account of the history of the area, we had a welcome cup of tea and biscuits, before carrying on to a few fruit stalls along the waythe third one called "Jones's in Cromwell " being the pick of the bunch by far, and the place where a good amount was spent on cherries, nectarines, as well as dried fruits.

The best part was the "sample table" where we were able to try dried fruit such as cherries nectarines, plums & apricots as well as pine nuts and almonds. Next stop was Arrowtown, where we had a quick lunch before visiting the old Chinese village, before setting off for Queenstown, where we had an hour or so checking out the local shops , before setting off for the airport and our 90 minute flight back to Auckland.

I'm sure all of the group would like to join me in thanking Virginia, our tour leader for looking after us and making sure that we all had a very memorable & enjoyable weekend. Last but not least, a special thanks to Kai Luey for the part he played in instigating and facilitating this trip.

Percy aka PKF

My Experience

Another tale about riding the buses of our fair city. As you know, the beginning of " Free Rides " for superannuitants has been in force for several months now, and instead of using the postal system, I decided to ride the bus over to Browns Bay to settle my account at a nephew's travel agency, for a trip that I'm taking with no.2 son and granddaughters to visit no.3 son and family in Hong Kong, then go on to Guangzhou to visit the family village. However, being unsuccessful at contacting no. 2 son that morning, assumed that nephew's office was where I remembered it.....in Brown's Bay. Imagine my annoyance to find on going into his former office, to find out that he had relocated to the Albany office. Next, I found out through asking local bus commuters how to get from Brown's Bay to Albany, and was told that I would have to take a bus back to Takapuna, then get the bus to Albany from there, which I duly did. On boarding the bus, and flashing my gold card, I inquired of the driver whether Bush Rd. was on the way, and he assured me it was, so I sat back to enjoy the ride. After travelling for about 20 minutes, I had an idea that Bush Rd. was in the vicinity, so at the next stop, asked the driver whether there were shops at Bush Rd., and he nonchanantly informs me that the bus passed Bush Rd. about 1/2 a mile earlier, so I alighted at that stop muttering under my breath " Thanks mate! ", and duly started hiking back to Bush Rd. To make my walk even more interesting, I was at the wrong end of the road, and ended up walking for nearly a couple of miles before I reached my nephew's travel shop. When I had finished my business with him, I asked how often the buses went past the bus stop near his front entrance, and was told not very often at that time of the day, so he very obligingly took me in his car to the Albany bus station, and after a 5 minute wait for a city bound bus, was back at Britomart in 15 minutes, and back home 10 minutes later, so it was not all bad! Pity some of the drivers don't get a few lessons in " Public Relations", but with free travelling now, it will make rude bus drivers more tolerable. To end the story on a good note, I went on the bus to Orewa the previous Friday, to meet a friend for lunch, and you couldn't have met a more friendly driver.

Dear Kai , please find below one example, putting a family face on the relief effort, of the ongoing earthquake disaster relief work that World Vision is undertaking in China..I wanted, especially for you (please pass this on to your members if of value) to see how very valued, through the Red Cross your organisations wonderful contribution was and the very real difference it is making in the efforts they are undertaking as part of a multi-agency contribution..My understanding is that, via World Vision 10,000 quilts will be distributed as well as the individual housing etc work as per below-all making a great difference in peoples lives.

Monday, 27 October 2008

By Guo Dongni

As the sun goes down, 45-year-old Lian Dongyan folds up the quilts which are hanging out to dry. Sitting in front of her new house, still not quite completed, she watches her husband busily at work on it. She does not want to go home, back to the wet and small tent, but she knows those days are almost over; she is eagerly looking forward to the final completion of her new home. Thanks to World Vision, we don't have to suffer the cold this winter she says.

Lian's husband Liang Xing is overjoyed, full of plans as to how he will use the RMB 10,000 (USD1,500) house reconstruction subsidy received from World Vision.

I am going to town to buy some cement, lime and tiles. The sooner we finish building the house, the sooner we can move in. We will no longer be afraid of the rain. Life will become better in winter.

He is excited, counting the money over and over again, It's just incredible! It really warms our hearts before winter comes.

Lian lives with her husband, two daughters and a son in Wayaopo Village, Yingge Township, Taibai County, Shaanxi Province. High in the hills, surrounded by slippery slopes, the natural environment and living conditions have always been challenging there.

Before the May 12 Wenchuan earthquake, the family lived in the high hill. They had to walk up and down for a long journey if they had to go to town. Their livelihood depended on beans and corn grown in their poor farmlands on the slope. While Lian's father-in-law was still alive, he was paralysed and seriously ill. Giving the old man proper treatments had put the family in serious debts.

Earthquake is not a word that Lian enjoys using. On May 12 when the quake happened, she witnessed the total collapse of her poorly built clay house. When her second daughter, who worked in another city, came back for her parents, the old couple was found squatting at the foot of the hill, looking lost and covered in grey dust.

Indeed, everything turned grey at that moment. The sky was grey, so were the trees and the people. Food, furniture, clothes and quilts were all buried under the rubble and dust.

The house was gone. Everything was gone. After all these years, we lost our home and were left in big debts. Our child still has to go to school. What were we going to do?

I had no money to build a house. For more than 10 years, I have been collecting wooden materials to build a new house, and yet I was still unable to do so.

Her husband continues, rubbing his hands embarrassingly, I am very poor. I cannot support my daughters to go to school and they have to go out of the village to work. They are not educated and people look down on them. They can only make very little money.

Their second daughter was not willing to leave her parents after the quake. But sharing a small tent with the entire family was awkward for them.

It was also scary when rain or storm visited them. Rainwater leaked from the temporary kitchen set up by tarpaulins and kept pouring on the tent. Often the firewood was too wet to be burnt. The puddles, mud, chilly weather and wet bedding all made the family miserable.

Not long ago, it rained for more than two weeks and made the family suffer much. They all got skin problems. Red and itchy swollen spots kept growing all over their bodies making life really unbearable.

As autumn season began, the temperatures dropped to freezing in the mountains. Despite the two quilts covering their bodies, they still shivered under them at night.

World Vision distributed quilts to us before and they now keep us much warmer at night. But we would really be worried if we had to stay in the tent for winter, Liang says.

Liang Xing says the government offered some assistance to rebuild their house but it was not enough. The whole village was short of finances and had no way to get loans. This family had no income and the credit cooperative was reluctant to lend money to them, even though they had asked for help a couple of times. The family had no money to buy materials and pay to the workers. It seemed that reconstructing their house was an impossible goal.

Fortunately World Vision's subsidy just came in time to relieve their problems and keep the house reconstruction work going. Liang Xing smiles, Once the house is complete, our daughters should no longer worry about us but go and get married. We really thank World Vision very much! We thank all the kind-hearted people from World Vision.

Now, everything seems to be starting anew. Lian sits by the corn she has collected from their field and talks of her future plans.

People are so kind to help us and so we got to live our life well from now. When construction is finished and our family settles down, my husband will go to big cities to find a job and earn money to repay our debts as soon as possible. My son is going to graduate from technical school soon and he will go out and find a job too. When our children have their own children, they must study and go to college and live a good life.

World Vision helps us so that we have food to eat, quilts to cover and house to live. We will never forget it for the rest of our lives. j±

Lian smacks the sturdy wall of the new house with joy, saying, Though I can't meet the people who help us, I shall remember their kindness in my heart. I will make sure my children live a good life, not forgetting those who have helped us. If there is any one in need in the future, we will surely help without any reservation.

WOMEN'S GROUP NEWS

The Women's Group welcomes members to a New year of exciting activities.

Last November meeting we enjoyed a day trip by bus with our kind regular bus driver Bill Houghton. This time we went to 3 beautiful gardens in South Auckland. First to the Auckland Botanical Gardens, a very large garden in Manurewa. It consists of many different gardens and ponds, including a big rose garden with a very good variety of lovely roses in full bloom at that time. There were lots of other plants and flowers in separate areas, a truly interesting place to visit.

Our second stop was at Atarangi Garden & Nursery in Papakura. This garden was very pleasant to walk around with more roses to enjoy as well as giant poppies and sweet pea flowers. We had a lovely homemade lunch organised by the owner there.

Afterwards we went to Amesbury Park Gardens in Ramarama. We were fascinated by the wonderful garden statues and ornaments the owner had arranged amongst the plants and flowers in her garden and around the beautiful pond.

In February this year we took a ferry trip to Motuihe Island. It was a quick 30 min. trip across the harbour. On arrival we took part on a guided walk through the bush area on part of the island seeing many native trees and plants as well as native birds. After that we enjoyed a social picnic lunch on one of the beautiful beaches.

Coming Up : On Sunday March 29th we will take a bus trip to the Awhitu Peninsula. There we will visit the monthly Awhitu Country Market where local organic produce and arts and crafts can be purchased. Following that we will go to the Orua Bay Bird Park to see the exotic birds and have lunch in the tearooms there. After that we will drive up to the top of the peninsula to the Manukau Heads lighthouse. From that point we will be able to take in stunning views of the surrounding areas. One last stop will be at the large 'Earthtalk' property where we will have a guided walk to see many native plants as well as fruit orchards, organic vegetable, herb and flower gardens.

If interested, or if you have any queries about our meetings, please contact Gillian or Florence. You will need to reply by 20th March if you wish to go on the March trip.

On Saturday 18th April, Brian Young will be giving a talk about his recent travels to the Middle East. He visited Israel to see Jerusalem, Bethlehem & Nazareth. He also went to Syria, Jordan & Dubai. He will have photographs to show from a DVD played on a television. Men are also welcome to attend on this occasion.

Our meetings are usually held at 1.30pm on the 3rd Saturday of each month at Meadowbank Community Centre, 29 St Johns Rd, Meadowbank, near the Meadowbank Shopping Centre. New members always welcome, so please ask your friends and relatives to come along.

NZCA AUCKLAND INC CANTONESE MUSIC SCHOOL

GUNG HEI FAT CHOY - Welcome to the Lunar Year of the OX (stubborn, patient and hardworking)!!

The vision of the School is to encourage the learning of our heritage language – Cantonese , so that the children can communicate to their grandparents and great, grandparents. At the school we teach oral language through song and movement. Embrace the Chinese Culture by giving cooking lessons to the older girls . To celebrate the Chinese New Year the girls made glutinous rice dumplings (sweet and round - symbolic for health and prosperity).

We are very fortunate to have the services of Mr Tat Ming Tsui and Ms Irene Ho. Tat taught at primary level in Hong Kong for a number of years before coming to NZ. And Irene has just completed a Diploma in Counselling. They have been in NZ for over 15 years. Both are indeed very qualified to teach bilingual oral language to the children.

Current pupils and parents are very enthused by the programme and some parents are very keen to be teacher aides to help their children progress even further.

Some people find that there is a clash with sporting activities on a Saturday morning especially in the winter sports season. All are welcome back any time as time permits.

A FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO EASTERN BEACH !

A story to lighten your heart.

Can you imagine the gales of laughter around our table when this person eventually arrived for dinner about an hour late. It seems some people are so intelligent , erudite and successful in business that sometimes the simple things in life are lost on them. Given a GPS by the family and ample directions every 15 to 20mins. by mobile phone how to get there didn't make one iota of difference.

It was a case of children's game " Round and round the mulberry bush" only in this case it round and round the round - about. Not once,not twice, not three times not four times and on the fifth time around a young Chinese girl who must have seen the whole saga innocently asked "ARE YOU LOST" Ha! Ha

What a ribbing this person received from us all! Stone cold dinner and dessert was of no consequence and all the ribbing and jokes were received with great grace and humour.

P.S .I think if it had been me in that situation, after the second or third time around the round - about I would have given up and gone home in disgust ! Maybe that's why that person is so successful and I'm not. No stickability. EW

Take a risk

To laugh is to risk appearing a fool
To weep is to risk appearing sentimental
To reach out for another is to risk involvement
To expose feelings is to risk exposing your true self
To live is to risk dying
To hope is to risk despair
To try is to risk failure
To love is to risk not being loved in return
But risk must be taken, because the greatest hazard in life is to risk nothing.
The person who risks nothing, does nothing and is nothing.
He may avoid suffering and sorrow, but simply cannot learn, feel, change, grow, love - live.
Chained by certitudes, he is a slave. He has forfeited his freedom.

Launch of the Chinese Journals

On the 10th February 2009 the Chinese Journal Digital Database was launched at the Auckland Central Public Library. Auckland City Mayor John Banks conducted the formalities; Kai Luey (on behalf of NZCA and representing the Chinese Poll Heritage Trust) and Howe Young (on behalf of the Dominion Federation of NZ Commercial Chinese Growers) were the main speakers. About 80 guests attended the launch.

The Chinese Journal Digital Database database is the culmination of 12 months of intense work between Auckland City Libraries, the Alexander Turnbull Library, the NZ Chinese Association and the Poll Tax Heritage Trust. The database combines three periodicals: The Man Sing Times 1921 – 1922; New Zealand Chinese Weekly News 1937 – 1946; and New Zealand Chinese Growers Monthly Journal 1949 – 1972.

The database enables people to browse these periodicals in the comfort of your own home, any person with knowledge of Chinese and a love of history will find the site very stimulating. Go to: www.aucklandcitylibraries.com. Then go to Digital Library.

I am sure it will be of particular interest to new migrant Chinese to be able to read about some of the events and activities of the early Chinese in New Zealand from the 1920s through to the 1970s. Furthermore, researchers worldwide will be attracted to the site.

Cover page of the first issue, July 1949

Here is an excerpt (from p. 2) about the 'New Zealand Chinese Growers Journal' compiled by Ruth Lam:

Chan Chung Yock, known as Dan Chan, was the first editor. Dan Chan was also the secretary of the Dominion Federation, but as the editor he took responsibility for the writing, editing, scripting, typesetting and distribution of the journal. For the first three years, each issue was hand-written in Chinese script and cyclostyled on a Gestetner machine. Each issue had 700 copies printed and distributed free to Chinese residents in New Zealand, funded by donations and advertising revenue. It was a vital link between the Chinese residents in New Zealand, especially those in rural areas who had less opportunity to associate with their fellow Chinese.

Dan Chan gifted his collection of Growers' Federation journals to the National Library in 1989. Note: The complete article entitled "The NZ Chinese Growers journal" will be placed on the Auckland City libraries website shortly.

This article is part of a book project on the history of the Chinese Growers in New Zealand. If you have historical information, old photos and items of interest please contact Lily Lee, Project Co-ordinator, email address: lily@rautaki.co.nz

REPLICA OF OLYMPIC SCULPTURE @ AKLD LIBRARY FOYER

SENIOR LIFESTYLE GROUP MEMBERS VISIT TO FO GUANG TEMPLE

NZCA Wintercamp 2008

Late in 2006, a friend told me she was heading to China during summer break. She described the tour briefly; I didn't think much of it. She returned with incredible stories and pictures of the places she went, things she saw and people she met. I had an idea by then that I ought to go. The next two years were spent saving up and talking to other 'China trip alumni'. Rumours spread that Janet was no longer operating the youth trip so it was a relief when my application for the 2008 tour was accepted. Thank you NZCA and Janet for making these root-seeking tours possible.

Meeting with Janet and the 29 other members at the airport on Nov 23rd was exciting and a little daunting, I can be quite hopeless with names at the best of times (luckily, there were some I already knew). It was interesting to learn of all the siblings/cousins in the group.

The flight to HK was an indication of things to come; it's as if transport creates mass chronic fatigue in the group. Planes and buses were the greatest sleep inducers. Shortly after boarding, heads lolled and snores could be heard, regardless of whether the ride was 10 minutes or 10 hours. Solid hotel beds were only inviting after long days spent travelling followed by late nights out on the town. Early wake-up calls also left us slightly sleep deprived.

Touching down in Guangzhou, we picked up Jessie, Cindy and Sunny, our translators and Chinese teachers from GZ Technical College. The three young ladies were so helpful for the two weeks they were with us. We also picked up all the differences that demonstrated we were a long way from home. Air was dusty, roads had a lack of rules and a lot of toll gates, food was chewy, bony and/or oily, toilets were simply holes in the ground with a flushing mechanism and many of the homeless were severely disabled. I was surprised by the abundance of trees, bright city lights, luxury of our hotels, billboards in rural areas, different flavours/ingredients used in cooking and the beautiful orange sunsets.

Foshan's ancestral temple introduced us to Wang Fei Hong's style of Kung Fu. Taught by provincial champions, with incredible amounts of patience, we slowly memorised a short routine of defensive manoeuvres. Shi-fu (master) ensured our stances and movements were absolutely correct so the performance would be a success. Over the 3 days of informal training, we learned a lot about our masters and their lifestyles. They were selected at a young age to move from their village and work in the city without an opportunity to study at a normal school. The lives of most Chinese children are set out for them from birth, we're so lucky to have so much free-will in New Zealand.

A stop off in Zhongshan allowed us to see Dr Sun Yat Sen's home and memorial park. We all came away with a greater appreciation of his contribution to modern China. Walking into a Kung Fu and Lion Dance competition at the local University was a nice surprise. Stunning displays of co-ordination and balance like nothing I've ever seen!

Taishan was memorable for its people and nightlife. The proximity of the hotel to the city centre allowed us to check out the streets, shops and nightclub around the corner without worrying about catching dodgy taxis. I enjoyed visiting the ancestral villages of fellow campers as it gave me an idea of what to expect from my own villages (also how to perform the bai-san ritual of respect for the ancestors). Jessie, Cindy and Sunny were crucial in helping to break down language barriers and tracing our roots. The living conditions are so basic and most of the young people have shifted to the cities but those left in the village are free to keep pets and play social sports just as we do back home.

Xintang was darkest town we visited. Janet advised us to restrict our evening outings, travel in groups and watch our money. The place is notorious for crime, though we managed to keep ourselves safe. My father's long lost relatives from nearby Dongguan visited me at the hotel then returned two days later to show me the cemetery where my great-great grandparents and my father's half brother are buried, their own homes and the house my grandfather lived in. I was also fortunate enough to be taken on tour around the largest jeans factory in the area in which my 'niece' and her husband work as managers in the design department. The complex was massive and most employees live and work on site. It was difficult to communicate without the translators and other campers for help but the experience was overwhelming with positive outcomes. The people I met were complete strangers when on arrival but I left with a true sense of belonging and what it means to be family.

A day trip to Shenzhen was a helpful reminder of the progress the Chinese have made in recent years. In the 1980's the area was declared a Special Economic Zone and has been developed accordingly. The Splendid China and Cultural Park had a lot to offer in terms of entertainment and education. Miniature models of famous landmarks were true to the real-life counterparts we witnessed later on the trip. The evening cultural show had spectacular stage effects and performances.

Guangzhou had too much to see and do. The time we did have allowed for brief visits to my mother's parents' villages in Baiyun District, pictures at the five rams statue and Guangzhou Museum, a spot of shopping and a trip to Guangzhou Technical College for painting & calligraphy lessons, sports (basketball & soccer) and a show put on by the 'Business English' students who were keen to learn more about us and New Zealand. Cruising down the Pearl River gave a different perspective of the city lights and bridges. Free time on the final day was liberating, no uniforms, no wake up call, no time limits! Learning to use the subway was a novelty that never wore off, wish we had one here in Auckland.

After a short flight we arrived in Hangzhou. Our new tour guide told us of the romantic folk tales of that characterise the city. A bike ride around the lake and boat cruise across the surface were perfect ways to take in the beautiful scenery of the West Lake and surrounding mountains. Lingyan Buddhist Temple had a sense of calm about it and much to explore. The Longjing (Dragonwell) Teahouse was our first encounter with highly organised sales seminars. Many of us purchased a carton or two of tea, convinced that we needed a daily brew of the "Emperor Quality" leaves to cleanse our insides.

Xitang water village had certain quaintness about it, the people were incredibly friendly and the shop owners were fun to bargain with (not too pushy). Posters and plaques of Tom Cruise in Mission Impossible III show their pride in hosting a scene of the film. Cats and dogs sat in doorways; a rumour was started that we'd be having their meat for lunch... didn't feel hungry after that.

We did typical tourist activities in Shanghai and Beijing, led by yet another guide. Pleased we went to the factory shops but proud of myself for refusing to cave into sales pitches at Shanghai's Silk factory and Jade factory.

Highlights - shopping at the Yu Garden Bazaar, getting measured up for a coat at the Tailor's market and getting a 'fresh' new hair colour. The Temple of Heaven, Forbidden City, Summer Palace (with frozen man-made lake), Ming Tombs, Sacred Way and Olympic Village in Beijing provided post-card picture opportunities. The achievement that is the Great Wall is just breathtaking, not due to lack of fitness and cold, thin air but thinking about how many lifetimes and lives it took to build such a massive structure on such inhospitable terrain left me in awe. Swimming in the hotel pool and shopping at the Silk Markets were reasons to go back some day.

Free time in HK felt so limited, I hated thinking about the trip drawing to an end but at the same time I was ready to go home. Spent a lot of shopping time with friends not involved in the Winter Camp and missed a lot of sites because of it. Managed to catch the campers at Ocean Park, a place I'd definitely like to return to once renovations are complete. Our final day of the trip was bittersweet, especially since we left Janet at the airport without a proper farewell and gesture of thanks. We've got much to be thankful for, we've gained new experiences, a greater appreciation for our Chinese heritage and genuine friends.

Since returning, I've been asked countless times 'So, how was China?' and I can honestly say it was truly amazing. We experienced so many new sights, sounds, smells, tastes and feelings. Each city was memorable for its own reasons; even travel in between destinations was an adventure. For future Winter-campers, I recommend taking a decent camera, at least 10GB photo storage and keeping a travel diary. It seems like a chore to write it during the trip but you'll be thankful when memories get hazy. Also, take some extra red packets for unexpected relatives! As for contact and photo-sharing with your new found friends... Facebook shall be your new addiction ☺
